FRIENDSHIP

Friendship Primitive Baptist Church is located about four miles north of Rosston and about one-mile northwest of Cale in Nevada County. This part of Nevada County was part of Ouachita County until 1871 when Nevada County was created. See map at left for the location of Friendship (circled in red).

The pioneer settler at Friendship was David Butler Almand who had traveled to Arkansas with his family from Georgia in the days just before the Civil War. His descendants believe the Almands traveled by wagon to the Mississippi River south of Natchez, loaded their wagons onto barges to cross the river, then followed the Ouachita River to Camden and took the Washington Road westward. Mr. Almand purchased a large tract of land and since he was a minister, one of his first tasks was to set aside several acres for a church and cemetery in 1859.

A Civil War soldier was buried at the cemetery in 1864. The soldier became sick while on a scouting mission. The party left the sick

soldier at the home of James Blanchard while they resumed their mission. The soldier died from his illness and was buried at the cemetery. Efforts were made to learn the name of the soldier but were unsuccessful.

A vacant church building still stands at the site, but it has not been used in many years and has fallen into a state of disrepair. Some think this is the third church building at this location, the first being a log structure. Mr. Almand was a circuit riding preacher who also served two other churches, New Hope near Bodcaw and Bethesda near Camden.

An incident occurred here in 1983 when a funeral was being conducted in the old church building. A faulty vent for a propane heater caused several people to pass out and they had to be carried outside and revived on the hoods of cars.

A marker was recently installed at the cemetery to honor Mr. Almand and to designate Friendship as an historical place.

SANDYLAND CHRONICLE

I didn't get many answers to the "What Is It?" in the last issue. I must confess that I didn't know what it was either. I didn't want to make it too easy for you, so I didn't show the words faintly stamped on one side of the object –"Chicken sans volaille". I did a search and discovered that this was a kitchen utensil used to make mock chicken legs. The phrase "chicken sans volaille" is French for chicken without poultry.

According to the information I found, back during the Great Depression, chicken was scarce for people living in large cities and was more expensive than pork or beef. People living in the country usually had plenty of chickens. It was during that time that someone came up with the idea of mixing pork and veal with other ingredients to make mock chicken legs. The recipe mixture was formed to resemble chicken legs and a skewer was inserted so it could be held in the hand while eating. It was sometimes called "city chicken".

This utensil made it easier to form the mixture. The meat was pressed into the mold and a small stick was inserted through the hole in one end and then the mock chicken legs were cooked and served.

Here is an early recipe for "City Chicken" from ca 1930 (serves 4):

- 2 lbs. pork and/or veal (cubed)
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 Tablespoon seasoned salt
- 1 ½ teaspoons black pepper
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 cups beef broth
- 2 Tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

SANDYLAND CHRONICLE

1. Thread beef cubes onto four-inch bamboo skewers.
2. Combine flour, salt, and pepper on a plate. Roll skewered meat in flour mixture. Reserve left over flour mixture.
3. Brown all sides of meat in butter.
4. Combine remaining ingredients with left over flour mixture. Add to meat. Cover and simmer over low heat for 1 ½ hours, stirring occasionally.

Here's a more modern recipe from Taste of Home magazine:

1 egg, slightly beaten	Coating
½ cup cornflake crumbs	1 egg
¼ cup milk	¼ cup milk
2 Tbsp. finely chopped green pepper	2 cups cornflake crumbs
1 tsp. salt	oil for frying
¾ lb. ground pork
¾ lb. ground veal
12 Popsicle sticks

1. In large bowl, combine first 5 ingredients. Crumble ground meat over mixture and mix well. Shape a ¼ cupful of meat mixture around each Popsicle stick.
2. In a shallow bowl, whisk egg and milk. Place cornflake crumbs in another shallow bowl. Coat each leg in crumbs, then dip in egg mixture, and re-coat in crumbs. Let stand 5 minutes.
3. In electric skillet, heat 1/4 inch of oil to 375 degrees. Fry legs, a few at a time, for one minute on each side until golden brown. Drain on paper towels.
4. Arrange on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until no pink remains and thermometer reaches 160 degrees.

We are now in what is known as “the dog days of summer”. Some think that expression was given to the hot, sultry days of summer that were “not fit for a dog”. Others believed it was during this time that many dogs went mad.

From July 3 to August 11 each year, the sun occupies the same region of the sky as Sirius, sometimes called the Dog Star. The dog days of summer refer to the twenty days before to the twenty days after the alignment of Sirius with the sun –July 3 to August 11.

SANDYLAND CHRONICLE

I didn't get many answers to the "What Is It?" in the last issue. I must confess that I didn't know what it was either. I didn't want to make it too easy for you, so I didn't show the words faintly stamped on one side of the object –"Chicken sans volaille". I did a search and discovered that this was a kitchen utensil used to make mock chicken legs. The phrase "chicken sans volaille" is French for chicken without poultry.

According to the information I found, back during the Great Depression, chicken was scarce for people living in large cities and was more expensive than pork or beef. People living in the country usually had plenty of chickens. It was during that time that someone came up with the idea of mixing pork and veal with other ingredients to make mock chicken legs. The recipe mixture was formed to resemble chicken legs and a skewer was inserted so it could be held in the hand while eating. It was sometimes called "city chicken".

This utensil made it easier to form the mixture. The meat was pressed into the mold and a small stick was inserted through the hole in one end and then the mock chicken legs were cooked and served.

Here is an early recipe for "City Chicken" from ca 1930 (serves 4):

- 2 lbs. pork and/or veal (cubed)
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 Tablespoon seasoned salt
- 1 ½ teaspoons black pepper
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 cups beef broth
- 2 Tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

SANDYLAND CHRONICLE

1. Thread beef cubes onto four-inch bamboo skewers.
2. Combine flour, salt, and pepper on a plate. Roll skewered meat in flour mixture. Reserve left over flour mixture.
3. Brown all sides of meat in butter.
4. Combine remaining ingredients with left over flour mixture. Add to meat. Cover and simmer over low heat for 1 ½ hours, stirring occasionally.

Here's a more modern recipe from Taste of Home magazine:

1 egg, slightly beaten	Coating
½ cup cornflake crumbs	1 egg
¼ cup milk	¼ cup milk
2 Tbsp. finely chopped green pepper	2 cups cornflake crumbs
1 tsp. salt	oil for frying
¾ lb. ground pork
¾ lb. ground veal
12 Popsicle sticks

1. In large bowl, combine first 5 ingredients. Crumble ground meat over mixture and mix well. Shape a ¼ cupful of meat mixture around each Popsicle stick.
2. In a shallow bowl, whisk egg and milk. Place cornflake crumbs in another shallow bowl. Coat each leg in crumbs, then dip in egg mixture, and re-coat in crumbs. Let stand 5 minutes.
3. In electric skillet, heat 1/4 inch of oil to 375 degrees. Fry legs, a few at a time, for one minute on each side until golden brown. Drain on paper towels.
4. Arrange on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until no pink remains and thermometer reaches 160 degrees.

Friendship Primitive Baptist Church is located about four miles north of Rosston and about one-mile northwest of Cale in Nevada County. This part of Nevada County was part of Ouachita County until 1871 when Nevada County was created. See map at left for the location of Friendship (circled in red).

The pioneer settler at Friendship was David Butler Almand who had traveled to Arkansas with his family from Georgia in the days just before the Civil War. His descendants believe the Almands traveled by wagon to the Mississippi River south of Natchez, loaded their wagons onto barges to cross the river, then followed the Ouachita River to Camden and took the Washington Road westward. Mr. Almand purchased a large tract of land and since he was a minister, one of his first tasks was to set aside several acres for a church and cemetery in 1859.

soldier at the home of James Blanchard while they resumed their mission. The soldier died from his illness and was buried at the cemetery. Efforts were made to learn the name of the soldier but were unsuccessful.

A vacant church building still stands at the site, but it has not been used in many years and has fallen into a state of disrepair. Some think this is the third church building at this location, the first being a log structure. Mr. Almand was a circuit riding preacher who also served two other churches, New Hope near Bodcaw and Bethesda near Camden.

An incident occurred here in 1983 when a funeral was being conducted in the old church building. A faulty vent for a propane heater caused several people to pass out and they had to be carried outside and revived on the hoods of cars.

A marker was recently installed at the cemetery to honor Mr. Almand and to designate Friendship as an historical place.
